INTERNET SAFETY AND MIDDLE-SCHOOLERS:
HIGH TECH CRIME EXPERTS SPEAK TO PARENTS AT CLARENDON HILLS MIDDLE SCHOOL ON MAY 10

Internet safety for children will be the topic of a presentation sponsored by the Clarendon Hills Middle School Parent Education Committee on Tuesday, May 10, from 10 to 11 a.m. at Clarendon Hills Middle School, 301 Chicago Ave., Clarendon Hills. Speaking to parents in attendance will be Clarendon Hills resident, attorney and father of five, Keith Chval, who until recently served as chief of the High Technology Crimes Bureau of the Illinois Attorney General's Office. Chval, a frequent speaker on Internet precaution, has just established Protek International, Inc., a Clarendon Hills-based firm that investigates cyber crime and advises clients on related issues. The former county and state prosecutor also serves as adjunct professor of law at John Marshall Law School in Chicago, where he teaches such subjects as electronic discovery, digital evidence, cyber crime and economic espionage. Chval also is a member of the law firm of Connolly, Ekl & Williams, PC in Clarendon Hills.

Joining Chval for the CHMS presentation will be Dan Ferraro, Deputy Chief of Investigations for the Illinois attorney general. The two also will address the pressing concern of identity theft prevention.

Parking for the event will be available on the west side of Prospect Avenue just south of the intersection at Chicago and Prospect avenues. Anyone with questions may contact committee representatives Beth Bernardi, 630-655-9031, or Tami Byczek, 630-850-7811. Chval may be reached at his Protek office, 630-242-8225, or at 630-654-0045, Ext. 30.
